ANNIVERSARY OF A TERRIBLE TRAGEDY.

Forty years ago tonight, at ten o'clock, in the Ford theatre in Washington, occurred a tragedy which shook the nation, already stirred to the depths by rebellion, to an extent it never had known. And the enormity of John Wilkes Booth's act in slaying President Abraham Lincoln still has a deep impress upon the minds of Americans. Coming at the time when the country was just emerging from the darkest cloud that ever crossed its horizon and when the clear sky of a reunited country seemed possible, the blow fell with terrible, stunning force. The beloved chief of the nation struck down by the assassin at the close of the long war of the rebellion threw the nation into consternation, and for a time there were those who trembled for its safety; although the nation had just weathered a trying storm. To them it seemed that disintegration must follow. But although the great and good Lincoln was dead the republic still lived. And the memory of the man will always live in the hearts of a now reunited country.

IS THE PUBLIC SERVING, OR BEING SERVED?

It seems to The Times that if the Barre & Montpelier Traction and Power company which operates the electric railroad from this city to Montpelier really cares to accommodate the public it would long before this have provided a means for running its cars to the limits of the line in Barre, even if it should put the company to a little inconvenience. This company was given the privilege of running a street railroad system in the streets of Barre, with the stipulation that the cars should be run. Why are they not run? The company has for its excuse that the caving in of the sewer on North Main street and the necessary digging up of the track for making repairs prevents. Furthermore, that the car which was placed on the section between the sewer break and the ends of the line in this city is disabled, that part of the mechanism on the car is out of commission and that the rest is just about to go out of commission. It might as well go out with the other so far as serving the public is concerned. The public is not served. On the contrary the public is being imposed upon by the company to which it granted special rights and privileges to the exclusion of other companies. Soon after the digging up of North Main street made transferring necessary the company discontinued its service from the City Park to the end of the Washington street line, a distance of half a mile. The customary users of that branch of the road, particularly the workmen in the granite sheds, grumbled and were told that the motor of the car was not strong enough to take the car up the Washington street hill. That seemed plausible. But why doesn't the company supply the car with a new motor? For two weeks the Washington street line has been abandoned, and during that interval there has been plenty of time to secure and install a new motor. If the company desires to retain the good will of the public why has it not been done?

That action, or rather, lack of action, was considered just cause for complaint, and complaints there were, although none has been lodged with the proper authorities. But that was not all. Several days ago the company discontinued the South Main street line. The excuse for not running up Washington street, that the motor of the car will not stand the strain, does not hold here, for the road from the City Hall to the head of Ayer street is on the same grade as North Main street over which the "disabled" car now runs, and there does not appear to be any difficulty in making the regular trips from the City Hall to Second street, where the sewer break is. If the car can run on North Main street, it can run on South Main street. The railroad should be compelled to equip the car sufficiently, in other words to live up to the terms of its franchise. The indications are that the sewer break on North Main street will not be repaired for some time yet. Meanwhile the public should not be compelled to suffer for negligence on the part of the railroad.

We're loaded up with the very latest and choicest. No reason why every man and boy in town who wears clothes shouldn't be well dressed, for we carry the best that's made and do not charge extra for it.

What are the new styles?

Sack Coats—Longer draped from a broad shoulder to a closely fitting hip effect.

Waistcoats—In new designs, new fabrics, new colorings too varied to describe.

Trousers—The correct style is the medium cut. Special patterns to go with frock and double-breasted coats.

WE CLEAN, PRESS AND REPAIR CLOTHING.

Married For Fifty Years.

Bennington, April 14.—Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Phillips, of North Bennington, formerly celebrated their golden wedding by a reception in Bank hall at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening. Over a hundred people were present, including about twenty-five relatives, several of whom were from out of town. The evening was passed very pleasantly. The hall was prettily trimmed and during the evening light refreshments were served.

The couple were married at North Bennington April 12, 1855, by the Rev. Isaac Jennings, pastor of the Old First church at Bennington. Several who attended the wedding were present at the anniversary.

Jealous of a Girl.

Montpelier, April 14.—Sheriff Frank H. Tracey and one of his deputies were called to Sodom Wednesday night to arrest a young man, Fred Droun, who was creating a disturbance at his boarding house which was kept by Mrs. Mary Lawrence. It was about 10 o'clock when Droun began tearing his room to pieces, breaking furniture, etc., and it is said, threatened to use a loaded revolver he had in his trunk. Since the young man's arrest he has refused to talk, but it is the general opinion that the cause of his wild actions was jealousy over the daughter of his boarding mistress.

A SOUTHERNER'S GOOD FORTUNE

Sam Hoover Finds Something Better Than Gold Mines.

There is no happier man in this whole wide world to-day than Sam A. Hoover, of Greensboro, N. C., who is receiving the congratulations of his friends upon his fortunate find of something better than gold mines or oil wells. Mr. Hoover, in a letter to a friend in Barre, writes:

"Three months ago I was greatly distressed by nasal catarrh and entire deafness in the right ear. The labor of hawking and scraping to get my throat and nasal passages free from the foul secretions deposited there might be about equal to that of a six mile team with a road-scraper to get the earth from the roadside to the center. 'I purchased an outfit of Hyomei and Hyomei Balm, and as a result of its use my head, throat and nasal passages are all free from secretions of any sort, only as Nature designed, and my hearing in both ears is nearly as acute as it ever was.'"

There is no disagreeable stomach dosing in using Hyomei; just breathe it and its pure fragrance will kill the catarrhal germs in the head, throat and lungs. Hyomei Balm, used in connection with Hyomei, will cure the worst case of catarrhal deafness.

The complete outfit costs but $1.00, and extra bottles are only 50 cents. Ask Rickert & Wells to show you the strong guarantee under which they sell Hyomei. It costs nothing unless it cures.

Collection Will Be Complete.

One of the fisher martins killed in Bolton the other day is to be added to the animal collection at the State House. When this animal is placed among the others the collection will be complete, for there will then be represented every kind of an animal that lived in Vermont for the past 75 years.

Prof. G. H. Perkins has been for a long time endeavoring to get a fisher martin and now that he has at last been successful in finding one he is glad to say the collection is complete.

The fisher martin, or Mustela penanti, belongs to the mink and weasel family. In size it is almost twice the size of a mink, being as large as a house cat. The animals are growing scarcer in Vermont although they are plenty enough in Canada where they are known by the name of Pekans.

Dr. Harry Perkins of Burlington has received an appointment for the summer to the Carnegie Institute laboratory at Dry Tortugas island near Key West. This laboratory is a sub-tropical one for biological research with special facilities for the study of marine fauna. Dr. Perkins will leave the last of June.
